“ Lisa, I am very sorry to hear of your father's passing. I know how close you were to him and how much he loved you. He always had a smiling face whenever he came to the Frankfort Animal Clinic to bring you food or just to say hello. Cherish your memories of him and know that you will see him again someday!

THE SHELL

As we walk along our lives path, imagine you are on a beach

You feel the sand and smell the breezes

From the edge of life;s Ebbs and Tides

You spot a shell upon the shore where life once had thrived

We walked on and looked down upon and ocean deep and wide

As we looked down upon the shell it was taken by the tide

It was caught upon the waves of life

Which were bound up by the shore

Now it sails in memories of beauty unexplored

So when the sands of time wash gently under our feet

Remember the shell that lye's in the sand

It has washed out on memories tides that no longer can you see

Beyond all human boundaries where the soul can only be Exploring new horizons that we all long to see.
