“ I had just recently ran into Carolyn outside her home. We talked for over 2 hours about the laundromat and the Allison. She told me about young Mr. Allison as I called him. I was saddened to learn of his passing. I told her what a wonderful friend she was to him and that she was his Angel in the end. I also told her how much my grandmother thought of their friendship over the years. She talked of her, my dad, my stepmother, and others in my family. But mostly she talked of Aubrey and how much she was going to miss him. We talked a few more times over the next few weeks, and then I didn't see her out or at the laundry anymore. I wondered if she was okay. And now, even though she is gone from this Earth, I know she is okay in heaven with her family and her best friends, the Allison. Rest in peace sweet lady. I will never forget you.
