I would like to share one of my memories that I just thought of. We were playing a basketball game against one of the other high schools in the county. Charles stole the ball from one of the other team's player and headed to their basket and we all started shouting that he was going to the wrong goal. He thought we were cheering him on and made a basket for the other team. After that we gave him a hard time and started calling him Wrong Way Charlie.....He was a good sport about it and we all laughed with him...

“ Chuck worked with me at Siemens in Richardson and Austin, Texas and in Boca Raton, Florida. He had sharp technology skills, good with people, loved to crack a joke that would break us all up in a meeting. I don't know anyone that could manipulate an Excel spreadsheet better. He came to Austin from Richardson, Texas when Siemens closed that office. He worked with me till we closed Austin when we 'officially' gave him a retirement party. He then worked for me contract in Boca for 6 months to help us transition the data center from Austin. When he was about to 'retire' in Boca, (a second time) he sent me an email with the heading " It's time to think about retiring when" with top 10 bullets like "You have a one on one with your boss and you fall asleep", or "you tell someone you were in the Army and they ask if you served in Korea or WWII". He would bring 'corn puddin' to our pot lucks and gave us all the recipe. He was a mentor to me and others, liked by everyone and was an asset to our team no matter what we asked him to do. I will treasure my memories with him. We love you Chuck.
