“ I am sorry for your loss. Death is so painful that at times it's hard to move forward. At 2 Corinthians 1:3,4 God is known to be the source of comfort in such turbulent times. And he provides not only comfort but hope as Revelation 21:3,4 states. I do hope you find comfort for your loss. Continue to pray for strength.

“ My prayers go out to Jennifer's children and her husband. I was Alex and Connor's teacher in 2nd grade and I remember both boys well and the sincere love they had for their mother. I pray that both the boys and their siblings are blessed with sweet memories of their momma. Please stay strong boys and hold on to each other. Please know that God has a plan and it will be okay in time.

“ Dear Dee. I simply cannot express how sorry I am for you all in this huge loss of your loving daughter Jennifer. You and Jennifer were so sweet to my mother in her final months on earth and she loved you both so very much. You both were the best caregivers anybody could ask for and you were such a blessing to our family. from what I can gather it sound as if she was just doing her job (that she was so good at) and was an innocent victim. Again, I am so very sorry.

Obviously I know a great deal about the intense grief you will experience and I am here to help in any way that I can. Hospice was a good resource for us in that first year and provided some counseling to Jackie. I tell you this in case it might be helpful to your grandchildren. I was surprised they offer services outside of cancer, but they do and there is no charge. We did the family support group as well.

God bless you all and Jennifer's husband and 5 children. You will remain in my thoughts and prayers as you have been since I got the news. Love always, Sandy

“ My condolences to her Mom, siblings immediate and extended family. She was a blessing to all of us in her own way. She was a blessing to her mother, who I know has loved her with her heart and soul over the years. Dee Dee I wished their were words that would take the pain away, but I know their is not. We all love you and Jennifer and will miss her dearly. To you and all of her sibilings my heart goes out to all of you. I will be praying for you in this time and forever more. I have so many memories of this young lady and I will truly hold those deep in my heart. I love you Jennifer Downey and will always remember the laughter and love you brought into my home. You and your mother are special women and each of you hold special place in my life. Love you always and forever more. Rest in Peace beautiful angel.
