“ They don't make women like Aunt Margie anymore. She was born during the depression and life wasn't always easy but she loved God and her family. She cared for her family deeply and always had a smile. Almost as much as she loved her family was her love for animals with many dogs over the years. And horse racing, starting with Paul, and continuing through Ricky and Jeff she always had a race story to tell or a newspaper article to show. She was always a constant through out my life from childhood visits at Christmas with gifts in hand for me and Bonita, to Sunday afternoon phone calls and quick visits when I went back to Frankfort. Aunt Margie also always made sure I knew she was proud of me when I became a truck driver and always wanted to hear stories of where I had been and what I'd seen. We shared a special bond and she will be missed terribly.

“Margie was one of a kind! A spit fire of a lady. We used to go by her house all the time and she'd be sitting there watching the horse races yelling at the tv. She cracked us up! Then she'd mosey in the kitchen and start rustling up food for Mel to take home to the boys. She was so special. We will miss her forever and reminisce about her often ❤️
