“ It's been so long but feels like just yesterday. I hear your voice and feel your presence. I hate to think and know your gone. Each day is just a reminder that I don't have you here. I miss you oh so dear! I think of you everyday and in so many ways. It's like you shaped my thoughts and my physical days. I know your watching I hope you see what you are supposed to be sharing and talking about with me. I want that coffee and conversation that hug and that moment to brag about my grandbabies with you. There is Noone I wish to tell more than you. I love you mom and miss so much. ❤️

“ Mom, I miss you so much, love you beyond words can say. I wish I had the right things to let you know God has recieved the most wonderful and beautiful angel of all. Mom, your wings came and you protected me through all my journeys. As I traveled on my missions and then the journey to the states as I was nervous or scared I felt your love and presence. Thank you for all you teaching and guidance as you raised me and kept giving me in my adult life and through most of my motherhood. I love you so much

“ god giveth and god taketh away, and he promises to make it better someday, life is just a stepping stone to a higher plain, and when we get there we will feel no more pain, she is a strong person and was chosen to go first, to prepare us a home for when we are at our worst, just like jesus she was chosen to do the same, and thats why i pray for her happiness in his holy name. amen
