“ I didn't know Dick long, but it was interesting, to say the least. He was having the company I own build him a custom gaming computer and, sometimes, we even "talked" (he preferred email) about the build.

Mostly, he told me about himself, his service, his post-service career and everything going on that bugged him LOL.

I'e never had such varied and all encompassing conversations and within that short time, we became friends.

Oh course, him having been in the navy and me in the army, we took shots at each other's choice of service.

It was well that he was buried with military honours, he earned them.

I'm going to miss him and our daily email swapping.

Rest in Peace, Dick.
