“ It has been almost a year. A year ago today you gave me a Christmas list. As usual excited to have me as your elf. We had high hopes for your back but God had other plans. I think you pushed his hand away for years and finally, he wouldn't take no for an answer. Looking back now, I wish you were here but I know you are somewhere much better, much warmer, and with no pain. You're thought of every day and talked to every day too. I have a picture of you in your kitchen during a Christmas when you stood upright and tall. You were excited to cook. I keep that in my kitchen and every time I make something new, I give you credit. Love you always, Jenny

“ Uncle Bobby loved to have family get togethers. I remember going to see him and aunt Elma and my cousins on the 4th of July one year. He had the biggest firework show I ever saw. I don't think I stayed awake the whole time he was setting them off. His laugh was loud and smile was bright and welcoming. May You Rest In Peace pain free. I love you and I know you are with the love of your life and happy. R.I.P
